Biography

Thorsten Grohsjean is an Assistant Professor in the Department of Management and Technology and an ICRIOS fellow at Università Bocconi since September 2016. He worked between 2012 and 2016 as a Junior Professor for strategy and organization in technology-intensive industries at LMU Munich. From 2011 to 2012, he was a Research Associate in the innovation and entrepreneurship group at Imperial College London.

His research focuses on the question of how individuals and firms overcome the challenges associated with the acquisition and development of new knowledge, skills and abilities. He concentrates on employee mobility, problem solving and innovation as the main modes of acquiring and developing human and social capital. The challenges he is interested in include threats to identity, coordination, and cognitive biases. His work is published or forthcoming in Academy of Management Journal, Organization Science, the Journal of World Business, and the International Journal of Industrial Organization. Practitioner-oriented versions of his research appeared in MIT Sloan Management Review and Harvard Business Review. Since 2020 he serves on the editorial review board of Strategic Management Journal.

Thorsten got a Ph.D. in Management and a Master of Business Research from LMU Munich and a Diploma in Management from the University of Mannheim.
