Biography

Andrea Rotolo is a SDA Lecturer of Government, Health & Not for Profit at SDA Bocconi School of Management. He is also a contract professor at Università Bocconi, teaching Public Administration in undergraduate courses.

He has participated in and coordinated several research and executive education programs involving the leading actors of the Italian healthcare and social system, dealing with public and private (for profit and not for profit) health care and welfare organizations, regional governments, municipalities and pharmaceutical companies. Since September 2018 he has also been a Teaching Assistant for the MIHMEP Master Program.

His research interests and scientific publications revolve around healthcare management, focusing on the topics of strategic planning, performance management, organization and integration between social and healthcare services and digital innovation.

He is the author of several papers published in national and international journals such as Public Management Review, BMC Health Services Research, Mecosan and Welfare Oggi. He has also contributed to various editions of Rapporto OASI, the annual report about the state-of-the-art of the Italian health care system. He is the author of the OCAP White Paper 1/2019 about digital innovation in welfare services.

He earned an MSc in Economics and Management of Public Administration and International Institutions at Università Bocconi in 2010.
